BRITAIN ACTS TO BOLSTER UP HER DEFENCES

Willingness of opposition leaders to co-operate in a broad coalition, and that prospect was not considered good.

LABOR BARRED

Leaders of the Labor party are at present barred from participating by their own party decision but the Labor conference at Bourmont on Monday may modify that decision. It was believed tonight, however, that the party would agree to co-operate in a cabinet that included Sir Samuel Hoare, an minister, or Sir John Simon, chairman of the exchequer, or even Chamberlain himself.

Political observers also believed that the Liberals might refuse to serve under Chamberlain. David Lloyd George, Liberal leader, who was largely responsible for building up the opposition in the cabinet in this week's debate, was regarded as likely to refuse to go under Chamberlain.

Viccount Halifax, foreign secretary, on Winston Churchill, first lord of the admiralty, were regarded as having a better chance of forming a coalition government than Chamberlain. The Laborites, however, have been badly crushed at Churchill in recent days.

The House of Lords introduced tonight May 8, subject to recall at any time.

VIGILANT CRITICISM

In the House of Commons, Lloyd George continued his vigorous criticism of the cabinet. He added that since he had urged the world war voters to elect the authority to carry out pledges given in the treaty of Versailles.

Arthur Balfour, British foreign secretary, charged Lloyd George with charging Hitler at several crucial moments in the last few years.

He urged Lloyd George to "reform his old genius and indomitable spirit" and to use the "force of his own will."

The House of Commons then adjourned until May 11.

Predict Nazis Will Bomb Britain Soon

LONDON, May 8.—A prediction that Germany will bomb Britain "and probably soon" was published today by the magazine Airplane, which urged a "war of swift, methodical attacks by the Royal Air Force on Germany's communications, munitions, aircraft works and flying fields."

"We must not be lulled by Germany," the magazine editorial declared.

OTTAWA, May 8.—While Canada has been free from sabotage, enemy agents or sympathizers this is no assurance the situation will continue throughout the war and eternal vigilance is the watchword of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police.

The R.C.M.P. in co-operation with other police forces and the intelligence branch of the defence department, are responsible for the prevention of enemy activity in Canada.

There is no cause for boasting, said Commissioner S. T. Wood, head of the force, last night. "I remember rightly it was not until 1918 that we had sabotage in the air."

TWO FACTORS DECIDE

Two factors probably account for the absence of sabotage or espionage of a Canadian "first column" in the Viceroy's Palace in London.

There were 78,000 persons in the Viceroy's Palace in London, and with him present gold medals to 20 military, wives and sweethearts of Italian soldiers killed in Ethiopia, Spain and Albania.

GEORGE'S DAY

The crowd at the Viceroy's Palace was a "George's Day" crowd. It was a day of national celebration.

He referred to the entrance of the German army into Adria, Albania.

A group of more than 11,000 soldiers and officers of the Italian army were present at the ceremony.

MOSCOW, May 8.—Military commanders of the Russian army have been made "entirely responsible" for future military operations and the divided responsibility between political and military officers eliminated. The Soviet press disclosed today.

Editorials in the Communist party newspaper, Pravda, said the government multiplicity. It was explained the re-organization of the army in a state of full military activity and responsibility.

The editorial, following the appointment of Marshal Semyon Timoshenko for War Commissioner, Komintern Vorobiev, recalled the lesson of the Russian Revolution in the far eastern campaign against Japan and in Finland.

During those campaigns a military council which included a political commissar and a general was formed.

BRITISH FLIERS RECOUNT TALE NAZI ATTACK

By FRANK FLANNERY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, May 8.—Many of the British fliers, many of them suffering from severe burns, told today how they escaped a German plane attack on the British air base during the twelve-hour bombardment.

The base was established two weeks ago on Lake Lejagers, about 40 miles southeast of Andover. The British planes took off from an aircraft carrier and flew in a landing formation to reach the base.

Shortly after their arrival, some of the planes took off to intercept two planes with German markings. The planes got away.

RADIO LOCATION

Apparently found by German pilots, the Norwegian ships radiated the location of the airport to the German high command for a bombardment of the air base began at 7:30 a.m. the next day and did not end until 8 p.m.

Meeling snow several feet deep hampered the defense. Some planes burst down trying to land and were destroyed one. The base was hit by incendiary bombs.

The Varscona Theatre

Partial Text Of Churchill Speech

LONDON, May 9.—Winston Churchill, First Lord of the Admiralty, last night in the concluding speech of an historic two-day debate on Britain's war policy stated that "one of the causes of our difficulties was that we had failed to achieve air parity with Germany."

"Air parity is considered vital to Britain's security," he said. "This was one reason why Britain did not take the initiative, he intimated.

During cognizance of "about 30 questions" put to him by A. V. Alexander, a former Labor first lord of the admiralty, Mr. Churchill said he preferred to "answer the general questions in the general account which I shall try to give to the house."

DEFICIENCY "CONDENSERS UP"

A new issue was sprung in the house at 8 o'clock, Mr. Churchill said. "We were invited to consider all the faults of the government and a vote of censure to be taken quite unexpectedly with only this little notice on the adjournment to night."

"Our numerical deficiency in the air—despite our superiority in both men and materials—has condemned us and will condemn us for some time to come to a great deal of difficulty and suffering and danger which we must endure with firmness until more favorable conditions can be established—no assuredly they will be."

Mr. Churchill said the reason why a big ship was not sent to Narvik in the first attack by five British destroyers was because the only ship available was a battle cruiser and "we thought it would be a great damage to the fleet if we lost a battle cruiser."

The Admiralty waited until it had the battleship, Wargpite, there, he said, and added: "It looked much easier the day after this it did the day before, it was a great relief to find that no controlled minefields were laid."

PATROLS TOO COSTLY

Replying to Mr. Alexander's question concerning action against enemy surface ships in the Skagerrak, Mr. Churchill said: "The immense enemy air strength which can be brought to bear on our patrolling craft has made this method far too costly to be adopted."

"The losses which would be inflicted on a steady surface patrol from the air would undoubtedly very soon constitute a naval disaster," he continued.

"We therefore adopted the submarine blockade as the only method at our disposal."

He interjected: "There is a great deal of difference about being responsible for an order which may lose several valuable ships and expressing opinion without such responsibility."

ghostly aces, 7,000 or 8,000 German planes have been downed."

Mr. Churchill said the navy was "perfectly ready to carry troops" into Tromsø but the plan was abandoned because in the 17th the two diversionary landings at Narvik and Andalsnes had made good progress and it seemed easier to capture Tromsø by this method than by "the old attack."

ARMY HAD DOUBTS

"The admiralty never withdrew their offer or considered the operation impracticable in the naval aspect. Grave doubts were entertained by the military as to the possibility of making a landing in the face of the enemy air superiority."

Mr. Churchill said he was speaking "in this plain manner" because of "the extract of unworthy suggestions and absolute falsehoods poured out on the public in the last few days."

Mr. Churchill said Britain had to conserve her air force to guard against "grave dangers which may come upon us at any time," and "refused that abandonment of the Tromsø attack."

Stories of clashes between "cavalry politicians" and the fighting service were refuted by Mr. Churchill. He disclosed British forces have captured the airport at Narvik.

FIGURING FOR NARVIK

When Mr. Alexander interrupted to ask if Britain is in possession of Narvik airdrome, Mr. Churchill said: "I suppose the enemy knows we are, so there is no harm in saying that we are."

"We now fight for Narvik," he said. "It will not attempt to predict how the struggle will go but conditions in that area are much more equal so far as ability to reinforce it are concerned."

Mr. Churchill said nothing would have been more likely to have brought "other dangers" than a long struggle around Tromsø.

He lost 10 lives for every one British lost in Norway, Mr. Churchill said.

"There is no word of truth," Mr. Churchill said in reports he had urged more violent action on Mr. Chamberlain or the war cabinet which had refused to take.

REPLIES TO KEYS

Replying to Admiral Kew, Mr. Churchill said he sympathized with his desire to lead a valiant attack and to repeat in Scandinavian waters "the immortal story of the Zebrugge Mile."

Mr. Churchill said that despite Hitler's overrunning of a vast region of Norway "the best resistance was put up."

Answering German claims that 11 battleships had been sunk, he said the arrival of the British fleet had been slightly damaged and neither was withdrawn for a day from service. "He cited a German claim that three aircraft carriers had been heavily damaged and said 'the facts are that none was slightly, damaged by a near miss' and is in the water."

CANADA WILL BE STRONGER AT WAR'S END

WASHINGTON, May 8.—F. J. Horning, economist for the Bank of Canada, told the United States securities commission yesterday the end of the war would find Canada "economically stronger than ever in her history."

Horning said the Dominion's role in this war would be chiefly that of a "supplier of munitions, food and other necessary materials." He testified at a hearing on a proposed reorganization of International Utilities Corporation.

BUSINESS REGULATED

At present Canada did not contemplate extensive military participation comparable to that of the last war because "at the moment it is not deemed necessary." He contributed, in addition to what as a supplier, would include the Empire air training plan and "relatively small contingents overseas." Canada enlisted 600,000 men in the first Great War, of whom about 450,000 served abroad.

Horning said financial regulations had been imposed which would "have the broad effect of building a wall around Canada economically and bringing all external business under official review." He said this was done with a view to preserving the Dominion's "national credit unimpaired."

"Noting that in the last war the Canadian public debt had increased seven fold, the economist said Canadians had "borne this huge burden with equanimity" and that the experience since then had shown the country's economy "sufficiently strong and well conceived to withstand this heavy strain, even during the years of severe recession in business as in the last war."

AVOIDS HIGH INTEREST

Canada is "in a much more favorable position today to absorb war loans than she was in 1914." It was clear the cost of the war could not be covered entirely by higher taxes but the present intention of the government apparently was to avoid resort to the high interest coupon and tax-free securities which characterized wartime financing in 1914-18.

He said the present cost of the war is around $1,000,000,000 a day and that later commitments might reach $300,000,000 a year. This compared with a peak expenditure during the first Great War of $446,000,000 in 1918-19.

Camel In Secured By Toronto's Zoo

TORONTO, May 8.—Torrey, the double-humped camel of Siberian ancestry, but born in Philadelphia's zoo, has been secured by Toronto's High Park Zoo. He was traded by Philadelphia for three black bucks and six young emus and will live here in the enclosure next to Florence, a dromedary.

The latest figures released by the British Ministry of Transport report that the sale of new cars in Britain fell 77.3 per cent during the first four months of the war as compared to the corresponding months of 1938.

Dorothy Dix Says:

Dear Miss Dix—Why do parents so often tell their children to be frugal? It is not because they are miserly and want to hoard money. It is because they are wise and want to teach their children to be frugal. Frugality is not a virtue, it is a habit. It is a habit that can be taught, and it is a habit that is worth teaching. Frugality is not a virtue, it is a habit. It is a habit that can be taught, and it is a habit that is worth teaching.

Answer: The child that parents often tell to be frugal is the child that is not frugal. The child that is not frugal is the child that is not frugal. The child that is not frugal is the child that is not frugal. The child that is not frugal is the child that is not frugal.

That excuse sounds plausible, but in my opinion it is all wrong. It is not a virtue, it is a habit. It is a habit that can be taught, and it is a habit that is worth teaching. Frugality is not a virtue, it is a habit. It is a habit that can be taught, and it is a habit that is worth teaching.

Of course, how much help parents should give their children depends upon circumstances. It is for instance, unwise for a father and mother to turn over all of their property to their children as the children's promise to cherish them and support them in their old age.

Greedy children, who cannot even wait for their parents to die to get their money, invariably turn the old people out to starve as soon as they have robbed them.

Also, it is foolish and wrong to supply a drunkard or a gambler with a wallet with money to enable him to indulge in his vices.

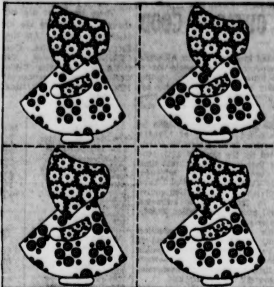

But when parents have been blessed with sons and daughters who are fine people, who are industrious and thrifty and hard-working and ambitious, they are great and selfish if they do not give the youngsters a hand up.

Sometimes it will save even life itself, for many a man and woman are broken down in health in their youth because they did not have the price of the medical attention they needed or for the vacation that would have kept them from cracking up.

A little money in a business for his son will jump the boy over the years and years of toil that he would have had to go through to work up to a partnership in the firm.

If we saw an old man and woman sitting in a dining room feasting on the most luscious food while their starving children gnawed on a bone in the corner we would think that they were the most unnatural and despicable creatures in the world, but they would be no wiser than the rich parents who withhold all help from their children who need it. DOROTHY DIX.

Telescopes defy distance. Light travels at a rate of 180,000 miles a second, or about six trillion miles per year. To reach the nearest edge of our present telescope range within 16 years, we would have to travel at a rate of six trillion miles per second.

Sweet Girl Graduate Must Be Business-Like

By ALICIA HART

The first thing the college graduate should do after she receives her diploma is to make up her mind to enroll as a life member in another school—the "up-and-at-em" school. It's owned co-operatively by the doers of the world. And anyone who doesn't join it isn't going to get very far after graduation in any direction.

LITTLE COMES TO HER WHO WAITS

Slender, red-headed, blue-eyed Miss Crawford told me that today, "No smart young graduate is going to luck her diploma under her arm and then sit around waiting for something new to happen to her." Miss Crawford went on.

"Whether it's marriage or a career, or a combination of the two that she wants, she ought to draw up a reasonable five-point plan for herself. The plan will include suggestions for getting what she wants and ways and means to hold on to it afterward."

"The plan may have to be changed—the chances are that it will be changed radically and often, if she is not careful."

But that shouldn't deter her from making it. I never heard of anyone getting anywhere with anything unless she went about it in business-like fashion.

YOU DON'T NEED TO BE JITTERY

Miss Crawford doesn't think that being a member of the "up-and-at-em" school means that you are a jitterbug, dancing madly and nervously hither and thither. She means that you simply get things done, and refuse to allow yourself to go to bed, mentally, actually or physically.

"It's the do-nothings of limited interests who sound odd, walk and look odd at thirty. The active woman keeps her youthful figure, draws up a reasonable five-point plan, and she has her youthful viewpoint, the attractive attitude continued. Every woman ought to have a variety of interests. And I don't consider membership in a bridge club an interest."

The spirit of only one English cathedral, that at Chichester, can be seen from the sea.

YOUR INCOME INCREASES WITH WISE HOUSING

Allow For Pleasures, Too

Another budget dividend for Tom and Mary! This month it's a swish spring formal for her. Last month it was a Tennis Club membership for him. How do they manage these jolly splurges when Tom's income stops the same? They estimate expenses ahead, follow wise buying tips, the two simple rules for successful budgeting. When they divided their income, they added two new spending departments. Splurges come out of a Recreation Fund. And each has a Personal Care Fund to dip into for grooming, wardrobe upkeep.

The money for these special funds comes from savings on two big items, clothing and food. Shopping for clothes, Mary cleverly sticks to one or two basic colors, brightens her wardrobe with crisp blouses, jaunty hats, gay clips and belts.

Planning meals, she first buys generic foods—milk, butter, eggs, vegetables, fruits. Then she rounds out the menu with meats, breads, cereals and sweets.

Follow the practical budget plan in our 32-page booklet. Shows how to divide your income to get what you want most. Has pointers on wise buying, rules pages for a year's savings.

Send 15c in coin for your copy. Write to Budget and Buy for Better Living, The Edmonton Bulletin, Home Service, Edmonton, Alberta. Be sure to write plainly your name, address, and the name of the booklet.

Please allow a week or ten days for delivery.

TRAINED SEALS ARE NOT SEALS

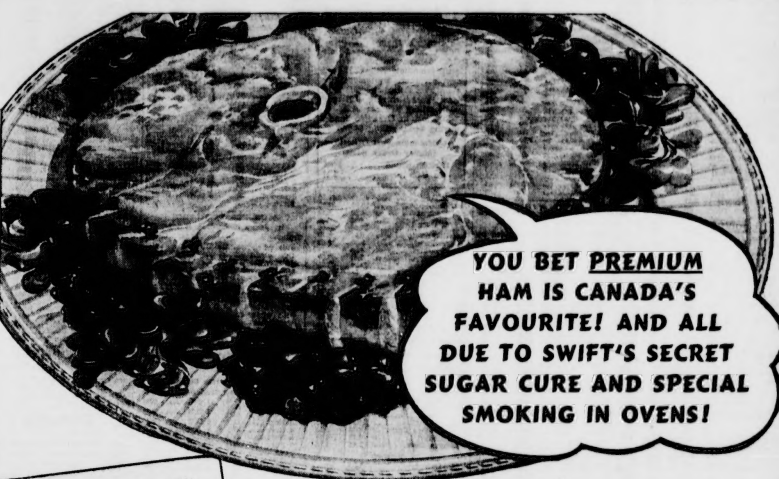

When you go to the circus and see the trained seals that do all sorts of tricks on the stage or in the ring, you are not seeing a true seal. These animals used for acrobatic tricks are sea lions. They are easily trained, because they are intelligent and active, and have a strong, coarse voice. The California species is most commonly used, as they are smaller and more easily trained. The largest sea lions come from the Bering Sea, where they sometimes reach a length of thirteen feet.

The man misjudged her, went on speaking with more enthusiasm: "You are using business sense, Miss Bond—and I congratulate you. Your word is good, Miss Bond." "You're right it is," she managed to say. "It's so darn good that if—if you don't get out of here instantly—and take your filthy money."

"Here's your money," she took from the locker trunk, hurled it at him. "Get out of here, and don't let me catch you—"

"All right—all right!" the man

"Are you crazy?" Sherry almost yelled it. "Get out before I have you thrown out!"

"Very well." The man picked up the money, put on his hat carefully and said, "You'll regret this."

Sherry felt unclean after the encounter with the thick-lipped, goggle-eyed gambler. Paul Wharton had warned her that racing wasn't all romance and roses; she never thought the sordid side would touch her—but it had.

g She walked to her roadster, parked ed at the end of the barn. An imported car, gleaming in its almost-a newness, it gave her a sense of t well-being just to sit in it. There e was nothing cheap or sordid about d it in a sense, it stood for a way of l living.

She laughed suddenly. She had a fine Derby prospect—and not enough money to enter him in the race! Not enough money to pay her groom tomorrow night, even. And attached to her were two brilliant fools, busted and cackling about love. The whole world was topsy-

Suddenly an idea struck her. Sherry jammed her foot on the starter—rolled between the barns—drove until she came to a building with a big sign hanging down: "Money to loan on autos—no waiting."

STANDARD BOX HOLD EASTERN POSITION

IN PARRING REPORT --

BY JACK DEAKIN

ESTER PATRICK may have to go a-hunting for more new boxers for his New York amateur team. Edmonton amateur boxer ranks have supplied the boxer with much good material through the link between Edmonton Athletic Club and Patrick. Now, however, the young Edmontonian is thinking more seriously about Canadian amateur boxing and jobs than there are about Broadway's bright lights.

According to the "granovier" which is heavily burdened these days with rumors and their demerit, Walter "Flash" Stinson, who has played several seasons with Patrick's boxers, will not return to the city of lights next year. The latest rumor, as the boxer put it, is expected to leave here soon to go to the States where he is going to pack-hatting with the Lehigh Valley, Calgry, Whistler, Frank Cullen and Reginald Ramsay services for the Lehigh Valley. Lead as to whether Flash has come to his mind to leave here is definite, but it is almost certain that Flash will be in the south. He is expected to leave here soon to establish his residence with whichever southern club will take him up with.

But Flash may be another member of last year's Ravens on the losing list. It is rumored that he is expected to attend college. As far as the "boxer" goes, he has had a very successful season, having won several titles. He is expected to leave here soon to establish his residence with whichever southern club will take him up with.

TANKERS ARE NOT BUT NO ONES WORRIED CHICAGO WHITE SOX, defeated the Cleveland Indians, 4-1, in the first game of the season. The White Sox, who have been in the lead since the start of the season, are expected to win the pennant. The Cleveland Indians, who have been in the lead since the start of the season, are expected to win the pennant.

And perhaps the most interesting aspect of the Yankee slump is the complacency with which most everyone is accepting their position. The Yankees, who have been in the lead since the start of the season, are expected to win the pennant. The Cleveland Indians, who have been in the lead since the start of the season, are expected to win the pennant.
